POOR JACK. Who cares for Jack ?- Not one, not one; Each has his selfish care,

Kind word or thought can spare; Who cares that still alone is his The ocean's rugged way; By night, unquiet rest, and toil, And bitterness by day ?

But for the friendless Sailor, none

Who cares for Jack ?-He has no friend To sooth his weary wo: If tears are his, no heart is his On which those tears may flow.

Who cares when pallid sickness bends On him its angry frown-Or when from the ship's plank he sinks A thousand fathoms down ?

Who cares for Jack-the voyage done ?-

The eager landlord cares, And to the utmost farthing strips The victim of his snares; Yea, there are spoils along the deeps, And ocean has its shoals,-But the dry land has more than these,- Hallo! hallo! the flag is up, 'Tis nailed unto the mast; Thank God! the sailor's battered hulk Is near the BETHEL cast. Hallo! hallo! a friendly port,-

The hopeless wreck of souls.

From cruel land-sharks free; Now comrades! bear a hand and look, The SAILOR'S HOME'S for thee There shalt thou meet with noble hearts,-

A willing mess will share; And none to mock thy true attempt To seek thy God in prayer.
Who cares for Jack ?—and who will not ? When seas have past away, His soul with ransomed shoals may shine, A gem as bright as they.

"THE ORIGINAL"

Is the title of a book by the late Mr. Walker, who died a short time since in England, containing many queer Books of a superior quality—making a complete assortment they will be seld on very moderate terms.

T. M. BAKER

Appetite .- "The Lord Lieutenant of one of the western counties eats a covey of partridges for breakfast every day during the season; and there is a popular M. P. at present about town who would eat a covey of partridges, as the Scotchman ate a dozen of becaficos, for a whet, and feel like him, astonished if his appetite was not accelerated by the circumstance. He had occasion to stay late in the city, and turned into the celebrated Old Bailey beef-shop on his return, where, according to the landlord's computation, he demolished about seven pounds and a half of solid meat, with a proportionate allowance of greens. His exploits at Crockford's have been such that the founder of that singular institution has more than once had serious thoughts of offering him a guinea to sup elsewhere, and has only been prevented by the fear of meeting with a rebuff similar to that mentioned in 'Roderick Random' as received by the master of an ordinary, who, on proposing to buy off an ugly customer, was informed by him that he had been already bought off by all the other ordinaries in town, and was consequently under the absolute necessity of continuing the establishmen;

Melted Butter .- "We quoted a remark of the late Earl of Dudley, to the effect that good melted butter is an unerring test of the moral qualities of your host."

Potatoes .- "At the meeting of a club committee specially called for the selection of a cook, the candidates were an Englishman from the Albion, and a Frenchman recommended by Ude; the eminent divine to whom we allude was deputed to examine them, and the first question he put to each was, 'Can you boil a potatoe?""

Gin Punch .- "One hot afternoon in July last, the inimitable author of 'Sayings and Doings' (what a book might be made of his own !) strolled into the Garrick in that equivocal state of thirstiness which it requires something more than common to quench. On describing the sensation, he was recommended to make trial of gin punch, and a jug was compounded immediately under the personal inspection of Mr Price. A second fellowed-a third, with the accompaniment of some chops-a fourth-a fifth-a sixth-at the expiration of which Mr Hook went away to keep a dinner engagement at Lord Canterbury's He always eats little, on this occasion he ate less, and Mr Horace Twiss inquired in a fitting tone of anxiety if he was ill. ' Not exactly,' was the reply; 'but my stomach won't bear trifling with, and I was tempted to take a biscuit and a glass of sherry about three." "

Dining Alone .- "We do not know what agreeable object Mr Walker particularly points to-but the author of 'The Parson's Daughter,' when surprised one evenning in his arm-chair, two or three hours after dinner. is reported to have apoligised, by saying - When one is alone the bottle does come round so often' It was Sir Hercules Langrishe, we believe, who being asked on a similar occasion, 'Have you finished all that port (three bottles) without assistance?' answered -'Nonot quite that-I had the assistance of a bottle of Madeira.' "

From the Cape of Good Hope. - A friend at the Cape of Good Hope has forwarded to us the "Graham's Town Journal" of the 12th of November last, which contains a long refutation of certain statements in relation to the present condition of the settlement of the Cape of Good Hope, contained in Mr Reynolds's late work. Mr R's statements in relation to the general character of the Dutch residents, and particularly their treatment towards their slaves, and the gloomy picture he has given of the situation of the Kafirs, are the principal points complained of in this paper. The editor says that the conduct of the Cape Dutch Inhabitants, particularly as slave proprietors, is worthy of all praise, and that there are no more humane or careful masters. As to the situation of the Kafirs, the editor says they are very far from being the oppressed people represented by Mr R., and in proof of his assertion cites the fact that the three friendly tribes living nearest to the Colonial frontier, and in the most intimate intercourse with the colonists, containing about 1.100 men, have amongst them 40.000 head of cattle, or about 36 to each man.

The editor of the Journal complains that Mr Reynolds wrote without personal observation, and upon data of an unsatisfactory and questionable kind.

"The American in England," which has been republished by the King's Bookseller, appears to fret John Bull considerably. The London Court Journal says-

"This work is published by the "King's Bookseller;" yet, strange to say, it designates one of the King's brothers, George the Fourth, a "bloated profligate," and represents another of the King's brothers—the Duke of York, as "conspicuous for ignominious failure as a General, for base and infamous collusion as a Commander-in-Chief"-as having "led a life of low debauchery and 'neglect of common honesty." After this, it may not be easy to say which exceeds in assurance-American in England, or his Majesty's publisher. We leave them to settle the point of precedence Two men have been brought from Concord, (N. H.) to Salem, to be tried, for packing the meat of a sick ox, in a quastity making about 200 barrels, some two or three years ago. The purchaser not being able to tell in which barrels the meat was, kept the whole of it on hand .--The culprits are said to be of good standing-they ought to be made to eat the sick ox raw, and without mustard.

We wish some of our Cambridge friends would give us the particulars relative to a late duel, said to have been fought somewhere in Roger Williams's State, by a couple of youths who deserted their mathematics to play with saltpetre. The Legislature of Pennsylvania has passed a law authorizing foreigners to hold stock in the banks of that State. Biddle will soon sell the whole of the "Key Stone " to European capitalists; his agents are abroad

Hen Factory .- A neighbor of ours is about establishing a large and extensive poultry establishment in this vi-cinity.— Bangor Farmer.

The Editor of the Farmer had better offer his services to his friend as a setter, for we don't know of another old hen that addles every thing it touches so quick. The Baltimore Patriot informs us that the venerable

Bishop White, who continues active in the discharge of his episcopal duties, entered upon the 88th year of his age on Monday, the 4th instant. Mr Cheever, the dreamer, was burnt in effigy, and otherwise insulted in Concord, N. H., a few days since, for preaching abolition and temperance. Six of the rioters have been arrested, tried, fined, and discharged. They have had a most magnificent Fancy Ball in New Orleans, a description of which occupies nearly two columns of the Bee.

The Connecticut Election is a sickener for the Whigs. They begin to "think pretty well of Van Bu-

To him who relies upon immortality, fidelity to the dead is easy, because death cannot extinguish hope; and the soul of the mourner is already half in the world to come. It is an age which desponds of a future life-representing death as an eternal separation-in which men may grieve indeed for the dead, but hasten to reconcile themselves to

Few are they whose names may outlive the grave; but the thoughts of every man who writes are made undying; -others appropriate, advance, exalt them, and millions of minds unknown, undreamed of, are required to produce the immortality of one!

She did not die-(die is too harsh a word!)-but she dropped away, and glided into heaven.

Love is the business of the idle, but the idleness of the busy .- Bulwer.

For the Boston Morning Post. The Yeas and Nays .- The explanation made in the Post by the Clerk of the House, with regard to the unusual delay in declaring the vote upon the question of the Ten Million Bank, is perfectly satisfactory so far as the Speaker and Clerk are concerned in that particular occurrence. But there still appears to me to be some ground of complaint, either against the rules of the House, or against the practice of the Speaker in ascertaining the result when the yeas and nays are called .-The counting, as well as the calling, seems to be left entirely to the Clerk, without any check from the Speaker by which to test the accuracy or fidelity of the former officer. Why should the Speaker be relieved from his responsibility and his peculiar duty, in the case of the yeas and nays, any more than when a question is decided by counting hands? He might easily take an account of the yeas and nays, by keeping a score or tally as the

The Daily Advocate, alluding to the vote in the House of Representatives on Friday, to abolish the State Bank, says -

"We hope our neighbor the Post will rejoice with us in this Democratic decision."

If the Advocate will refer to its own files, it will find, we think, that it has admitted that other banks are as culpable as the State Bank. We do not wish to justify any illegal practice in any bank; but when we see the State Bank singled out from among all the Boston Banks, as the only one for punishment, when many others have committed the same offences, we naturally look for the motives that induce this invidious selection We attribute them to the desire of certain persons to get possession of the name of the State Bank, and the location of the State Bank, for another Bank-and to certain old political grudges. The State Bank is mainly owned by old Democrats, many of whom, under Mr Adams's reign, turned Antimasons; and it is to feed fat this 'ancient grudge that the State Bank is selected for a victim. We shall be sorry to see any of our friends dupes to any shallow artifice for putting down this institution, to raise a worse one on its ruin.

We hope that the public will defeat the effort of the Providence Rail Road Company to gain a complete monopoly of the travel between Boston and New York, by continuing a liberal patronage to the old line of steamers. The officers of the old boats are skillful and cautious navigators, whose accurate knowledge of the waters they traverse has been obtained by long observation—they are kind, obliging, and gentlemanly in their disposition, and secure to their passengers every means of comfort and enjoyment in their power to render. Shall these trusty and long tried public servants be abandoned? We trust not.

Fire .- Yesterday morning, about four o'clock, fire was discovered issuing from the cellar of a four story brick building in Broad street, at the head of India wharf. The lower story was occupied by Mr Henry Sargent, ship chandler, and the upper part as a tinman's shop. The building was in flames before the arrival of the engines, but there being a good supply of water in the dock, eight or ten pipes were soon throwing a great quantity into the building, and thereby prevented the flames from spreading, and the roof of the building from falling in. The inside of the building was entirely destroyed. Engines from Charlestown, Cambridge, Roxbury, and South Boston were on the ground.

Beautiful Specimen of Engraving .- Mr Benjamin Bailey, engraver of this city, has executed and published a beautiful biographical card of President Jackson. is undoubtedly entitled to a biographical sketch. Be it known, therefore, that the distinguished subject of Thursday next, was read, and laid upon the table. this notice, was born of humble but respectable parentspoor as honest—somewhere all along shore, about forty-five years ago. The early portion of his life was spent in his original obscurity, from which he first emerged at the battle of Lake Erie, during the last war. He contributed his full share in the achievement of that brilliant victory, and for the bravery he displayed in the engagement, as pro claimed by his own bulletin—for by some inexplicable shall be in front of the State Heuse—referred to Messrs oversight, Commodore Perry omitted to insert his name Leighton of Boston, Adams of Newbury, and Fuller of and deeds in the official bulletins of the battle-he afterwards universally known and respected as the " Hero of the Lakes." In 1819, having settled in Charlestown he took unto himself one Miss Brown to wife, and being of a fresh fame he lived very fast some ten years upon his victorious reputation, and occasional speculations. His matrimonial, however, proved to be the most fruitful, butinscrutable inconsistency !- not the most profitable of his speculations, for he came near being blessed to death, as appears from the statistics of his connubial dividends. potato-traps) in constant operation, than he had capital He stated that he had been debarred by sickness from other gentlemen similarly situated, who were collectively and extensively known in Charlestown and its environs, by the corporate cognomen of the "Fresh Firm." business was more useful than ornamental, but possessed the singular advantage over almost every other money getting pursuit, of being most in demand in winter. Nor did their machinery require a great out-lay of capital : two pairs of sticks, three inches square and two feet long, crossing each other at an angle of 45 degress, and bound ogether by a horizontal bar, and a one-hand cross-cutsaw, was all that was required of each individual member. With these simple instruments they multiplied wood exceedingly, even in the coldest days, at the moderate rate of our-pence per foot, and afterwards carried it up-stairs at four-pence a flight. In the spring and summer, when perby his rub a-dub-dubbing, " in all the pomp and circumstance of glorious war," on training days.

Owing, however, to some extra expenses to which Badger was subjected, his profits from the concern were not so great as those of his co-partners; these extras originated, as do all other abuses and evils, in a very natural manner: When he first came to Charlestown, on account of his having shared in the dangers and exploits of Lake Erie, as he said, he was the "observed of all observers;" nen, women, and children, would devoutly listen to him, and hang upon his lips, as did the fair Desdemona on the and hang upon his bps, as did the fair Destantina of the lips of the dingy Moor, while "he fought all his battles o'er again." The best in the house, the bar, or the cellar, the Deposite Banks. This was, however, negatively although a pauper allowance would hardly be granted to a man who had done them. The social glass would sparkle, vanish, and be replenished, time and again, in the course of one of his "Ihads," but not at his expense. But as time crept on, the novelty, if not the veracity, of his tales time crept on, the novelty, if not the veracity, of his tales of blood and battle departed, but not his desire to relate Naval Appropriation Bill occupied the remainder of the hem. Unfortunately that habit stuck to him, like a bad shilling, and when his hearers ceased to liquor him for the gratification his legends afforded them, he was fain to liquor them for their self-sacrificing patience in listening to him. This change in his position occasioned the extra expenditure at which we have hinted above-it was to support growth. the dignity of his reputation-aye, "paying a tax for being

After this ebb in his affairs, a bankrupt in all but fame, Badger tried his fortunes in New York, but failing to accomplish any thing, he returned to his family in Bos on, where another calamity awaited him and them, and day last. as the proximate cause of his crime. At the great fire in Blackstone street, last year, they were burnt out, and his wife, being unable to procure a place to shelter her numerous brood, was obliged to take up her residence, with her children, in the Charlestown Alms house. Badger was then thrown on the world again, to shift for himself .visited his family in their retirement; but to a man long to the comforts of a home and bosom-c nion, these furtive interviews were altogether unsatisfactory, and by no means filled up the measure of his wishes. To assume again the charge of his large family, however, would be a desperate undertaking-to live longer without a wife was impossible:—so, sprucing up with the best of his abilities, he took the name of George B. Gilman, and obtained the hand in marriage of a Miss Wheat, whom he led to the altar last February; but it was not long before she learned she had married a badger, and her friends nstantly took means to bring him to condign punishment.

When the Judge was about to pronounce sentence, Badger had not a word to say for himself-he was aware that he was in a bad fix, and was not disposed to make the matter worse, by useless excuses; but his first wife pleaded vehemently in his behalf, and declared that his second wife ought to have had more self-respect for herself than to have made the affair public. "I hope you will not be hard with him," continued the imploring pleader; " for he was always very kind and affectionate to me. LEGANT ENGLISH PERFUMERY.—JAS. & EDWARD ATKINSON, Pertumers, 24 Old Bond st, corner of furlington Gardens, London, have supplied their Agent, J. A. DICKSON, 36 Cornhill, formerly Market street, with a valuable quantity of the following articles, which have been generally approved—

FASHIONABLE SOAPS.

White Hands.—Atkinson's Almond Soap—made from the purest Oil of Almonds—uniting all the softening qualities of the Almond with the detergency of the common Alkaline Soap.

Soap.

Chapped Hands.—Camphor Soap—J. & E. E. A. recommend this Soap as containing a greater quantity of amphor than has hitherto been considered practicable. It possueses all the cooling and other good qualities of that well known article. For Family Use—Atkinson's old brown Windsor Soap.

Ambrosial Soap—It is made from pure vegetable oil, and is equally mild as the almond, only differing from it in perfume and color—the latter being a light brown, and the perfume a combination of those most generally approved.

The above, with every other new and tashiomable Soap and Shaving Cakes, are always ready for exportation, and an al-

Shaving Cakes, are always ready for exportation, and an allowance is always made on taking one or more dozen. Atkinson's Concentrated Essence of Lavender-prepared Atkinson's Concentrated Essence of Lavender—prepared four times the strength of the best Lavender Water, freed from all the empyreuma of the spirit, and unsophisticated with the sickly admixture of musk, ambergris, &c. The superiority of this article to Lavender Water is, that it is much more powerful and fragrant—it is also much cheaper, as there is four times more perlume of the Essence for the money, than in the best Lavender water in use.

Atkinson's Venetakie Due—changes red or steep heir on the Atkinson's Vegetable Dye-changes red or grey hair on the head, or whiskers to an auburn or black, so permanent that neither washing, perspiration, nor any other cause can in the Bear's Grease, for the growth of Hair—This article is pro-cured from the animal in its native climate, it being known to possess more vivifying proper ies when so procured, than when the animal is in a domesticated state. It is of the finest qual-ity, and is sent out without any admixture, except a little per-fume to keep it sweet—and for the growth of hair it is no doubt for squeeties to give thing, hitherto known. Also for doubt far superior to any thing hitherto known. Also for dressing the hair it is very pleasant and useful—cleansing the head from dandriff, and making the hair beautifully soft and alone.

Atkinson's Curling Fluid, or Vegetable Hair Oil—for dress' ing the Hair. This article has been very generally patronised for the last twen y years—and is considered an indispensable appendage to the hold, making it, however, harsh, soft and glossy as silk—and keenirg it in our in exercise or demy weather.

dressing the hair, making it, however, harsh, soft and glossy as silk—and keeping it in curl in exercise or damp weather.

Almond sharing Paste—In very neat portable pots; a very elegant and excellent preparation for snaving.

Milk of Almonds—The most elegant and efficacious cosmetic hiherto introduced. It is a great improvement to what has long been known as Milk of Roses. It removes freekles, redness, roughness, &c. from the skin, and gives it a brilliant clearness and whiteness.

Atkinsm's Denilatory—For removing superfluous Hair on Atkinson's Depilatory—For removing superfluous Hair on the Face, Neck or Arms, with equal ce-tainty and safety, leav-ing the skin softer and whiter than before the application. Hudson's Botanic Tooth Powaer and Tineture,—These Dentrifices, which have so much attracted the attention of the Destrifices, which have so much attracted the attention of the Medical Profession, are remedies for all disorders of the mouth; they not merely cleanse and beautify the Teoth, but preserve them from decay. They make the Feeth white, fast en sach as are loose, eradicate the scurvy and tartar from the gams, leaving them firm and of a healthy redness, and if used regularly will supersede the necessity of a Dentist. They are entirely free of acid, and so innocent that a child may take the contents of a box of the Powder; and the Tincture is an excellent stomachic, and a certain remedy for the ture is an excellent stomachic, and a certain remedy for the CAUTION TO THE PUBLIC.—The subscriber having completed a purchase of the exclusive right of the new and u-eful improvement in the Cooking Stove called the Improved Premium or Conical, takes this method to caution all persons from infringing upon his right. The stove to which he alludes is probably best known by the name of the CONICAL Stove, and has his name on the front. This stove was introduced into market in its present shape in the Spring of 1835, and ahout 1500 to 2000 sold. They have generally given great satisfaction, and the subscriber has made such arrangements as will enable him to supply the market the coming season. And as he has been informed that there are persons in the vicinity of boston, who have already commenced manufacturing them, and others are preparing to make the said stove, he deems it his duty to inform such persons, and the public generally, that prompt measures will be taken to prosecute at such infringements.
